Thanks Ian for flagging. Yes we are seeing the same posture in the downtown core. I am glad that he was able to disengage.

Hi all,

Please see the report from our CO driving down SJAM. Seems like protesters all over the core area are feeling more emboldened today, and not only along Wellington.

Please pass this along to all of the appropriate contacts at your end.

Do let me know if you hear from the NCRCC any change to their approach to crowd management overall.

Cheers
Ian

Hi everyone,

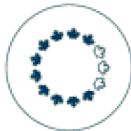

Quick update:

- * As per below email from PSPC, the fencing at the War Memorial was taken down by protesters.
 - * OPS public order unit was pulled back as they were significantly out-numbered by protesters who were a bit agitated.
 - * Fence was neatly stacked at the memorial and the crowd continues to congregate there, with numbers fluctuating
- * City By-law has been pulled out of the core of the time being and are congregated at City Hall
 - * Done in an effort to not further agitate the protesters
- * CO Lortie is at MHP and indicates that there is heavy foot traffic through MHP from Quebec but very little activity there.
- * CO Pink spoke to the security agent at Freiman Lane and all remains quiet at Confed Park.
 - * CO Proulx will be taking a look on his return to the core and report back on any changes to the installed fencing at Confed and at the Korean monument on Mackenzie King bridge.

For the time being the focus of the crowds seem to be Wellington Street with significant volume and new infrastructure being brought in (think hot tubs and TVs, for example) with some protesters now saying that “they are home” or “I’m from Ottawa”. Reports on the ground indicate that the protesters today are more militant and aggressive, but luckily this has had no impact on our lands or the monuments under our care.

If there is anything relevant to provide after my 3pm meeting with PSPC I will let everyone know.

Cheers
Ian

Subject: IMPORTANT NWMTUS - Situation

Importance: High

Nic;

As discussed I received a call from the NCRCC @ 13:19hrs advising that protestors were attempting to take down the temporary fencing around the NWMTUS. OPS/law enforcement on-site to restore order. PSPC crews have been dispatched to removing the fencing, and their access to the site is being coordinated with the assistance of NCRCC. PSPC crews will not proceed without a police presence.

Please note that I have flagged the situation to the DND, NCC and VAC and will keep them posted.
